

WE SOLVED THE DRUG WAR

---

SIXTY YEARS AGO

Crime was rampant. Drug gangs battled on our streets. Drug dealers sold their wares everywhere, even to schoolchildren. Police could do nothing. The vast profits of drug smuggling fueled corruption and violence, and the drug scourge seemed poised to topple America.

The drug? Alcohol. The solution?

END PROHIBITION

On December 5th, 1933, prohibition ended. That day, the drug lords were out of business. Today we have a new drug war, but the solution is the same: take away their profits and

PUT THE DRUG DEALERS OUT OF BUSINESS

In South America, Coca is as safe as coffee. Coca isn't available in the United States: drug smugglers find it easier to smuggle cocaine. In the east, opium is safer than tobacco. Drug smugglers find it easier to smuggle heroin, a hundred times more powerful. Our prisons overflow with pot smokers, while real criminals are let loose because we have nowhere to put them! We spend billions of dollars every year to fight the drug war, and have nothing to show for it but a few red ribbons and a lot of political hot air. Some of our children find it easier to buy illegal drugs than legal ones like alcohol! Alcohol dealers have to follow the law. Cocaine and heroin dealers are already breaking the law by selling drugs in the first place. Why should they care about breaking another one about selling to children? Ending alcohol prohibition took alcohol out of our schools. We did it then:
